UD RANKED IN TOP 25 FOR FUND MANAGERS

DAYTON, Ohio -- The University of Dayton is ranked number 25 among the most popular graduate schools for managers of financial funds in the nation in the 1993 Morningstar Mutual Fund Source Book.

UD is ranked in the source book's Top 25 Schools of Fund Managers, a list that notes where managers of financial funds received their graduate education.

Rebecca Yates, director of UD's MBA program, says the listing is reflective of the strong finance department at UD. "Students take courses in all functional areas of business, and the program uses very authentic problems and projects for students to work on," Yates says. "Through an experiential learning process students develop the ability to critically assess situations, make confident decisions and identify trends in the business."

Morningstar Mutual Fund Research, which publishes the annual source book, is located in Chicago and reports on mutual fund performance research.
